

Technology matters – your chance to use new technologies to support children, young people and families

Technology such as computers, iPads, mobile phones and new media like Facebook and Twitter can help staff and volunteers to nurture relationships, build effective services and deliver real benefits to our communities.

To help you get the most from your technology, Lasa has been commissioned by Children England to bring you trusted advice and the best practical tools and tips.

Lasa will shortly be launching a survey and working closely with specially chosen groups to show how they can get the most out of new technologies - so don't miss this chance to tell us how you use technology, what the barriers are and how technology can help your organisation make a positive difference for children, young people and families.

Find out more about Lasa @LasaICT and www.lasa.org.uk

This service is provided on behalf of the Department for Education's overarching strategic partnership for voluntary, community and social enterprise sector organisations that serve children, young people and families. Led by Children England, and working with Community Matters, NCVYS, NAVCA, the Race Equality Foundation and Social Enterprise UK, the programme will include information, learning resources and opportunities, and peer support networks. For more information please click here.

